

Crowe Horwath Global Valuation Advisors Committee members meet at Crowe Horwath offices in Madrid, Spain.

Crowe Horwath International Global Valuation Advisors Committee members - Mark Watson from South Africa, Gary McLoughlin from New Zealand, Olivier Grivillers from France, Adam Newman from USA and Jiri Hlavac from the Czech Republic met on 17th and 18th November 2015 at the Crowe Horwath's Madrid's office of Crowe Horwath Spain. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the strategy for the Global Valuations Advisors group and to update the training material and courses offered to the network by the group.

One of the outcomes from the meeting is that succession or an exit planning is important an important topic for a lot of clients in different regions around the world. Organizational re-structuring and creation of standard management practices can bring a substantial increase in value to the client's business, this needs to be implemented well before an owner or owners decide to retired or focus on other business activities.

Support for legal offices in all regions within our international network in the area of arbitration and court proceedings was also discussed. "Reports focusing on economic substance, reflecting the all relevant inputs and that are prepared by a reputable expert or appraiser is crucial in any law suit" Mark Watson, chairman of Crowe Horwath Valuation Committee said.
